

The National Planning Commission (NPC) invites you to participate in a webinar

on a Capable,
Professional,
Ethical and Developmental state.

The South African government has over the last few decades explored and discussed numerous plans and policies to create a Democratic Developmental State. However, due to a myriad of problems relating to either policy or implementation failures the pursuit of becoming a Democratic Developmental State is becoming a harder prospect to achieve in the current local and international political economy of South Africa. Part of the work of the NPC has been efforts to assist the government to achieve the dream of a South African Democratic Developmental State through recasting what Chapter 13 of the NDP envisages. The National Planning Commission Position Paper highlights critical pertinent issues and providing recommendations for the government as far as what government should do to ensure that the goal of making South Africa a Capable, Professional and Ethical Developmental State is achieved.
