The NDP charts a course towards a decent life for all South Africans by 2030, with full employment, greater equality, and the elimination of poverty. The NPC's Economic Review considers progress in achieving these goals, and specifically implementation relative to the NDP's proposals. The Review focuses on top priority and cross-cutting areas such as education, infrastructure, energy, digital enablement, the promotion of dynamic employment generating industries, public employment and performance, labour relations, fiscal sustainability and state capacity. Recommendations are made to correct SA's course towards a decent life.
